

“I’ve always lived life to the full. I’ve had an amazing life.

I don’t want to be remembered as dying horribly with bits of me rotting away.”

– Kay: Mother, grandmother, lover of life and palliative patient.

“I want them to remember me laughing and joking.

Not stuck in bed
with a tube coming out my nose.”

– Dawn: Abigail’s mum, Robert’s wife, MND sufferer.

“Sandy was incredible. Kind,
funny, fiercely independent...

When he started losing control, that was heartbreaking for us.”

Hundreds of terminally ill people in Scotland face intense suffering at the end of their lives because, right now, our law doesn't allow them choice over how they die.

We're building the biggest ever public record of support for assisted dying in Scotland to take to our MSPs. Show your support and help pave the way for introducing a new Assisted Dying Bill in the Scottish Parliament.
